

BALD EAGLE SOARING OVER MOUNTAINS

The bald eagle is a powerful flier, taking advantage of thermals to soar to heights before swooping down to catch its prey—mainly fish—at speeds of up to 99 miles per hour. Bald was a word that once meant “white,” and the feathers that give the eagle its name appear after about five years, when the eagle is ready to mate.